Fall brings many changes in our lives. Already our young people are heading back to school. Kindergartners are leaving mom and dad for the first time to be in the care of their teacher, many college students are headed off to live away from home for the first time. Our other young people are moving up one more grade as they march toward the time they too will leave.

Because of the many changes most of us welcome fall with mixed emotions. On the one hand, we are glad our children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews are maturing, growing up as God intends them to. On the other hand there is some sadness as one realizes how quickly the time passes and how soon our little ones grow up.

During the fall other changes occur as well. The weather begins to cool; it becomes jacket time again. Leaves begin to change color; conversations turn to when the first frost might hit instead of how high did the thermometer rise. These changes are met with mixed emotions too. Who among us doesn't hope for a long, beautiful fall before the snows begin to fly once more.

I am especially concerned about the emotions that come to farm families and farming communities when, after a spring and summer such as we have had, the crops have been hurt by too much rain and the prices are in the tank. I know my brother who farms has expressed his worries and his fervent hope that the harvest will turn out better than he expects as well as seeing prices on the rise.

Although changes come, both positive and negative, you and I stand on the bedrock of God's unchanging love revealed to us through the person of Jesus Christ. It is His love for us that will empower us to face the twists and turns, the joys and sorrows, the ups and downs of life with an inner sense of confidence and peace.

I pray each of us, will take time each day to thank God for God's faithful, enduring presence in our lives, especially during difficult times. May God bless you and our communities of faith!!!

Love in Christ,
Pastor Gordy
